Unidentified One Way Ride Victim Found In Woods

The body of an unidentified man who had been killed by a charge of gunshot fired into the back of his head at close range, was found lying face downward a mile north of Frankfort on the farm of Mrs. Mary Eisenbrandt about a half mile west of Route 51, by Harlan Eisenbrandt of Frankfort, about three o'clock on New Year's afternoon.

Mr. Eisenbrandt and his cousin were walking thru the fields late Friday afternoon when they suddenly came on the body lying on a rise in the ground.

They rushed at once to the Larson garage at the junction of the Lincoln Highway and Route 51 and told of their gruesome discovery.

Gilbert Knater, of Frankfort, state highway patrolman was notified and who in turn notified Sheriff Oliver Flint and Sergeant O'Neill. Deputy Coroner Willard G. Blood, Sheriff Flint and Sergeant O'Neill came out and viewed the body. The body was searched thoroughly, but all that was found was a leather wallet containing a snap shot photo apparently a likeness of the victim, a door key, a wisp of woman's black hair, and a bridge score card.

The man, of Italian extraction, was about 40 years old, five feet three inches in height and weighed about 145 pounds. He had black hair and dark eyes and had a swarthy complexion.

The man evidently was the victim of a gangland one way ride. He had been shot in the back of the head with a 20 gauge shotgun shell. The charge went upward and tore out the right eye which was found hanging on the right side of the face, broke the bridge of the nose and splintered the bones in the forehead.

Bushes nearby showed traces of the shot as twigs were clipped off by the leaden pellets.

About 20 feet from the body a bath towel was found. It is presumed this was used to either blind fold the victim or to tie his hands. An empty cartridge box was found near by, also the wadding from the shell fired.

The dead man wore a leather jacket, a brown plaid shirt, a dark brown sweater beneath the shirt, underwear dark trousers, striped cotton socks, black shoes and a gray cap with earflaps. The back of the cap was burned and cut by the powder and shot so that the killer must have held the muzzle of the gun almost against the victim's head.

The hands were stuffed in the trousers pockets. It is presumed the body had lain in the field for several days before it was discovered. Mr. Herman Barlewort who is a tenant on this farm, told the officers he had not seen any strangers about the place nor had heard any shots fired.

It is presumed the man may have been marched into the timberland and executed by Chicago gangsters. The body was removed to the Zechlin Undertaking Rooms in Frankfort where an inquest was held by Coroner E. A. Kingston Saturday afternoon. The coroner's jury returned an open verdict.

The unidentified body was buried in Pleasant Hill Cemetery by Mr. Zechlin, the Frankfort undertaker. The case is shrouded in deep mystery and undoubtedly like thousands of other gangland cases, will never be solved.

TINLEY PARK JUNIOR GARDEN CLUB NEWS

By Josephine Greco

The regular meeting of the Tinley Park Junior Garden Club was held January 2, in Mrs. Wm. Funk's basement.

After the meeting games were played and each member was asked to relate which meeting or trip she liked the best and this brought back all the many interesting trips and meetings that we have had in the past year.

Delicious cocoa, cookies, candy and apples were served. Mrs. Hug and Mrs. Alice Anderson, two of our Senior Club sponsors were ill and were unable to attend this meeting. We all wish them a speedy recovery and that they may be with us at our next meeting.

The Junior Garden Club wishes to thank Mrs. Wm. Funk for the use of her basement for the meeting and we also wish her a speedy recovery as she has also been ill. Dear Little Garden Buds:

It was so sweet of you to send me your card of good wishes, and I also send my thanks for the lovely plant.

Hoping to be with you next meeting and wishing each and every one of you a Very Happy Lovely New Year. Sorry to hear our little president, Fern Fulton is ill.

Sincerely,

MRS. R. J. HUG.

Aged Tinley Woman Found Dead In Bed

Mrs. Felerus, aged 87 years who has been residing on the old Moak farm on 167th street about a mile and a half northeast of Tinley Park for the past 12 years, was found dead in bed Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Felerus is survived by two sons, one residing in Midlothian, the other in Chicago and two daughters, both of whom reside in the city.

Her children were out to see her Sunday and she seemed in her usual health. When her son who resides in Midlothian, came to see her Tuesday morning, he found her dead in bed. Death is said to have been due to natural causes. The body was removed to an undertaking room in Oak Forest.

First Political Rally of 1932 Campaign At Mokena Jan. 14

The first big anti-prohibition political meeting of the 1932 political campaign will be held at the Mokena High School Auditorium Thursday evening, January 14th at 7:45 o'clock. Every phase of the political situation will be presented by able speakers. The line up of speakers is as follows:

Homer B. Grommon, chairman of the Will County Taxpayers League who will discuss "Possible Tax Relief Measures."

Col. Ira L. Reeves of Chicago will speak on "The Economics of Prohibition". Mrs. Violet Patten Wheeler also of Chicago and chairman of the Woman's Organization for Prohibition Reform will present Miss Mary Platt and others prominent in the associations activities against the present form of prohibition. Mrs. William H. Saur of the executive department will speak on the "Evils of Prohibition from a Woman's View Point".

Local speakers will make short addresses. A special program of entertainment, musical numbers, singing, monologues and readings will also be given. Mrs. Don C. Hall of Mokena, chairman of the local committee sponsoring this meeting and the associate members have spared no pains to make this meeting a pleasant and profitable one. All free and the entire family is invited.

The final game will be between the Mokena high school boys team and the Orland high school boys team.

Cars Hit Horses Roaming Highway At Orland Park

Horses roaming on the Southwest Highway northeast of Orland Park caused two auto collisions with the horses Saturday night. An auto from Blue Island crashed into a colt. The animal was somewhat cut and bruised but the car was damaged the most.

About ten o'clock the same night Mr. Miller, of Orland Park who drives a car for a Lemont cleaning establishment crashed into a big horse on the Southwest Highway near the Keane avenue grade separation. The auto was quite badly damaged when the heavy horse fell on it after being struck. The animal was also badly hurt.

Mrs. John Witt Dies Suddenly New Year's Day At Orland Park

Mrs. John Witt, aged 44 years of Chicago died very suddenly New Year's day at the home of her sister Mrs. John Burkhardt in Orland Park with whom she was visiting.

Mrs. Witt appeared to be in usual health and shortly after eating the New Year dinner, she suffered a stroke and died shortly after.

Surviving her are her husband and son Warren of Chicago, two brothers, J. F. Schmadeke of Orland Park and Wm. Schmadeke of Blue Island, one sister, Mrs. John Burkhardt of Orland Park and a host of other relatives and friends. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon in Chicago with burial in the Lutheran cemetery at Orland.

The deceased was well known in this section as formerly Elizabeth Schmadeke.

It is especially urged that all members and friends and their families attend in family groups. This communion is given especially for the family groups.

The Junior and senior choirs will both render special selections at this service and Mr. Royal Glahn assisted by Miss Lois Ludwig at the piano will render a violin solo for opening prelude.

Will Co., Historical Soc. Creates Interest In Early Days

True to its name the Will County Historical Society is endeavoring to create an interest among the residents of the county to perpetuate the memory of the old days of the county by having the citizens exhibit relics of the past at the monthly meetings of the Society held in the public library in Joliet. The following letter from Florence Lynk, assistant secretary of the Society, well explains the desires of the Society:

Manhattan, Ill., Jan. 5, 1932.
Mr. William Semmler,
Editor Mokena News-Bulletin.

Dear Mr. Semmler:
First of all congratulations on your splendid paper. I saw a copy of it at the last meeting of the Will County Historical Society.

Next thing is to get down to business. We so appreciated your cooperation at the December meeting that we are going to call on your aid for the January meeting to be held on Tuesday, January 19th in the Joliet library. It is to be a night of old dishes to interest the ladies and old firearms and hunting tales for the men.

What can you scout up of interest in your community? Is there any old hunter who will give you some reminiscences? We are trusting you can be with us that night to lend your support and to represent your part of the county. Bring some people along too.

Also, will you arrange an article for your paper to try to arouse interest to help make our society a real Will County Historical Society? It is such energetic people as you who can give the most help. I know you are full of good ideas so let's hear from you. I know you and what you can do from hearing about you from my sisters and my uncle M. J. Cunningham.

If you want further information or have some suggestions write to me. There ought to be much of historical interest in Frankfort township. How about that deck of cards you spoke of in your paper? Bring it along. Also you spoke of a man who had a relative in Washington's cabinet I think. Am I right? He ought to have some interesting data.

Well I have rambled on but when I get on my favorite subject I can not stop. I also feel that we have much in common for you displayed your desire to help at our exhibit of old prints. I envy you for they would make anyone desirous of having them.

Good luck to you in your business during the coming year and good luck to our society.

Sincerely,
FLORENCE LYNK, Assistant Secretary, Will Co., Historical Soc.
The editor will be glad to hear from anyone having old time relics which they would like to exhibit and will be willing to see that they are exhibited and safely returned.

Mokena Garden Club Does Charity Work

The Mokena Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. Herman Schweser Tuesday afternoon with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. L. G. Bruder opened the meeting. The regular routine of business was duly taken care of. Letters and expressions of appreciation were read from the four churches in Mokena for the Garden Club gift of rose bushes to them.

After a lengthy discussion, it was decided not to enter the Flower Show which will be held in April at the Navy Pier in Chicago.

A splendid report was given by Mrs. Schweser, chairman of the Christmas Relief Committee. A discussion was entered into pertaining to the continuing of this committee as had been suggested by others of our community. The Garden Club decided to be responsible for the relief work in Mokena and vicinity this winter, with Mrs. Schweser as permanent chairman. Anyone desiring to donate to this cause may bring their contribution to Mrs. Schweser who will see that it is given to the right parties and thus will avoid duplications. Will County has no regular relief program as has Cook County, but Mokena will in this way take care of those in need here and the Garden Club is glad to act as a clearing house for this purpose.

Announcement was made of the Nurserymen's Association entertaining the Garden Clubs in the Hotel Sherman, in the Bal Tavern room on the sixth floor on Friday afternoon, January 15 at 2 o'clock. All Garden Club members and friends are welcome and urged to attend as a full program is planned and some very fine speakers are scheduled. There is no admission charge.

Mrs. Albert Braun gave an interesting report of the visit which she in company with Mrs. H. F. Mall and Mrs. F. A. Tooley made to the Juvenile Home of Deceased Dependent Children in Chicago before Christmas. This is the only home of its kind in the United States.

Announcement was made that our publicity chairman, Mrs. Rose Bechstein is leaving this Saturday to spend the winter with her sister in Tulsa, Okla. We wish her a pleasant trip and visit. Mrs. Wm. Semmler was appointed to take her place in her absence.

A new member, Mrs. J. J. Eiler was taken into our club. We welcome her and hope our pleasant meetings

Cook County Banks to Charge Service Fee

Beginning with the first of this year the Southern Cook County Bankers Federation of the Illinois Bankers Association have adopted a per item service charge for handling various accounts. The per item service charge is analyzed as follows:

Av. Bal.	Mo. Chg.	Free ch. Mo.
$ 0 to $ 50	$.50	10
51 to 100	$.25	10
101 to 200	None	10
201 to 300	None	15
301 to 400	None	20
401 to 500	None	25

Additional checks above number free 4 cents each.

The Bankers Federation in explaining the reason for these extra charges says:

"The number of checks drawn against each account has increased from two to four times; the public has demanded and learned to expect a multitude of new services—all of which has made necessary more employees, special equipment and added facilities of every kind.

"To complicate matters still further, rents, wages, taxes and other operating expenses have risen tremendously in recent years, and banks in common with every one have labored under this increased burden.

"A recent survey showed that nearly two-thirds of the checking accounts in the banks of this country are being carried at a loss. This explains the reason why so many banks are finding it necessary to ask their customers in such cases to pay a small 'per item service charge' wherever such charges are justified—not as a penalty but to make the depositor's account self-sustaining."

ONLY ONE SERVICE CHARGE AT BREMEN STATE BANK

The Bremen State Bank at Tinley Park who are also a member of the Cook County Bankers Federation only makes one service charge of all the charges listed above, this charge being only for handling less than $100 in which case a monthly service charge of 50 cents is made.

The banks who are members of the Southern Cook County Bankers Federation are: Bank of Harvey, Bremen State Bank of Tinley Park, Cook County Trust & Savings Bank of Homewood, First National Bank of Dolton, First National Bank of Harvey, First Trust & Savings Bank of Riverdale, Homewood State Bank, Oak Glen Trust & Savings Bank, South Holland Trust & Savings Bank, Thornton State Bank.

Car Overturns On Wet Pavement Near Orland Pk.

Last Saturday noon a large Pierce Arrow car skidded over twice landing on its side in the ditch. The driver, who was from Chicago was not hurt. The car was somewhat damaged and was taken to the Zerbs garage in Orland Park.

White Store Places 58th & 59th Purchases Of Stock On Sale

The popular White Store of Joliet is starting the New Year with the offering of two big store stocks of groceries and dry goods marking the 58th and the 59th purchases of store stocks by the White Store.

The entire balance of the Boston Grocery and Bakery bought from the trustee for the benefit of the creditors at less than 50c on the dollar is now on sale at remarkable savings in prices.

The 59th stock purchase is that of the Hardin Style Shop, Inc., of Joliet. The entire bankrupt stock of this well known style shop was purchased from the U. S. Court at less than 35 per cent on the dollar.

This marks a wonderful chance to buy quality goods at economical prices. This is one of the greatest opportunities in Joliet to buy dresses, coats, undies, hosiery, etc., of high quality at ridiculously low prices. And as usual the White Store passes these tremendous savings on to its customers. Be sure to come early to get first pick.

The Hardin Style Shop ranked with the best in the country and the White Store is truly fortunate in being able to offer to its many customers and friends merchandise of such high character.

Orland Fire Dept. To Give Good Will Party Jan. 15

The Orland Park Fire Department is going to give a good will party and dance at the Orland Park public school auditorium on Friday evening, January 15th. Music for the occasion will be provided by the A. E. Wachter Orchestra of Mokena. Everyone is invited. No admission will be charged.

The Path To Success

The "Path to Success", from the financial standpoint is clearly defined. But precaution is necessary. If you would follow it straight and true, you must be guided by men who know its many tempting crossroads, men whose experience as bankers have taught them that conservatism in money matters is the only SAFE means of making progress.

This Bank's officers are qualified to serve you in that capacity! And they gladly welcome your call for Advice on Investments, Savings or any problem you have concerning Money and Your Future.

Grandi Fought in Trenches; Now He Is Seeking Peace

Rome.—Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister who recently conferred with President Hoover in Washington on disarmament, is another "happy warrior." Since he enrolled in the Alpine infantry in 1915, when but nineteen, he always has fought—first, on the field of battle, second as a military Fascist, and third as a protagonist of disarmament. While he is "dynamic Mr. Grandi," he is also "dramatic the fighter."

He is loaded with military honors. If he should don a uniform it would be that of a general of the Fascist militia and on his breast would appear the highest distinctions which Italy bestows for military valor. He received the silver medal for military valor on the field of battle and in addition wears the bronze medal and sashes, which would add to his military splendor.

Now, he is a champion of peace, who has gone through all the danger and suffering of war, for he was in the trenches. He enlisted as a private and within a year was made a second lieutenant. His valor and leadership made him a captain at twenty-two. He achieved distinction at Monte Altissimo, Val Lagarina, the Altipiani Val Brenta and at the battle of the Piave, the decisive battle in the Italian campaign.

Returning from the war at twenty-three, he had to go back to his books for he had chosen the law as a career. It was while a student that he was attracted to the Fascist movement. One night while studying, he was interrupted by mobs of Socialists, who were demonstrating outside his window and decrying the service of all those who participated in the war. Grandi wished to study, but the demonstration lasted so long and so antagonized him that he decided to fight this spirit which deplored Italian patriotism.

He enlisted in the new movement, which was being formed by Benito Mussolini in Milan, and was one of the first militant Fascists from the district of Bologna. His capacity for leadership soon placed him at the head of a group of Fascists, who carried on an incessant and militant fight against the Socialists. Grandi was always to be found among the most daring, whenever a leader was necessary.

Taking masses of men with him, he was elected to parliament in 1921, when twenty-four. This was below the age limit, according to the law, and when he sat in parliament to have his seat validated, he was declared ineligible because he was not twenty-five. This, however, was the first time that any Fascists had been elected to parliament so that he was among the first 33 deputies, who stood under the Fascist banners with Mussolini as their chief.

He then founded a militant Fascist newspaper in Bologna and turned somewhat from the practice of law to the leader of the rising political force

enter the political arena. He became a fiery writer and his paragraphs became bywords throughout the rank and file of the Fascist party. He was for the regions of Emilia and Romagna.

In the times from 1921 to the "March on Rome," in 1922, he carried on a relentless fight against the old political parties. His youth brought him an enthusiasm for the new movement which served to push it farther and farther in the district of Bologna. He was the head of the flying squadron and the moving spirit of the vast region. At the convention of the Fascist party in Rome in 1921, he achieved national prominence for his eloquence.

He was in the forefront of the Fascist movement during 1922 and when Mussolini uttered his famous challenge to take the government of Italy before the 1922 convention of the Fascist party, Grandi was one of his most intimate collaborators.

The challenge was to take concrete form in the "March on Rome" and for this great event, Grandi was the chief of staff. As the quadrumvirate of leaders met in Perugia to put in effect their plan, Grandi was there as chief adviser. The success with which the campaign was crowned naturally designated Grandi to be one of the driving forces in the new movement.

For his valuable service in aiding the success of the Fascist revolution, he was nominated a lieutenant general in Fascist militia at its creation in 1923. He kept his rank in the regular army and in 1927 was promoted to the rank of major by the king. For special merit, he received another promotion and now holds the rank of lieutenant colonel in the reserve of the regular army.

He was the first secretary of the Fascist parliamentary group and was elected a vice president of the chamber of deputies in 1924.

Grandi was born at Mordano, a small town near Bologna, on June 4, 1895.

British Perfect Device to Iron Out Highways

London.—No longer need roads be torn up for repairs. They now can be "ironed" and made as good as new.

A new machine which smooths the surface of worn out highways was pronounced successful after series of experiments at Farnham.

An "iron" eight feet square is placed on the asphalt and heated. Soon the surface crumbles and can be raked away. A very thin layer then can be applied and "ironed" on, and the road is ready for use again in a few minutes.

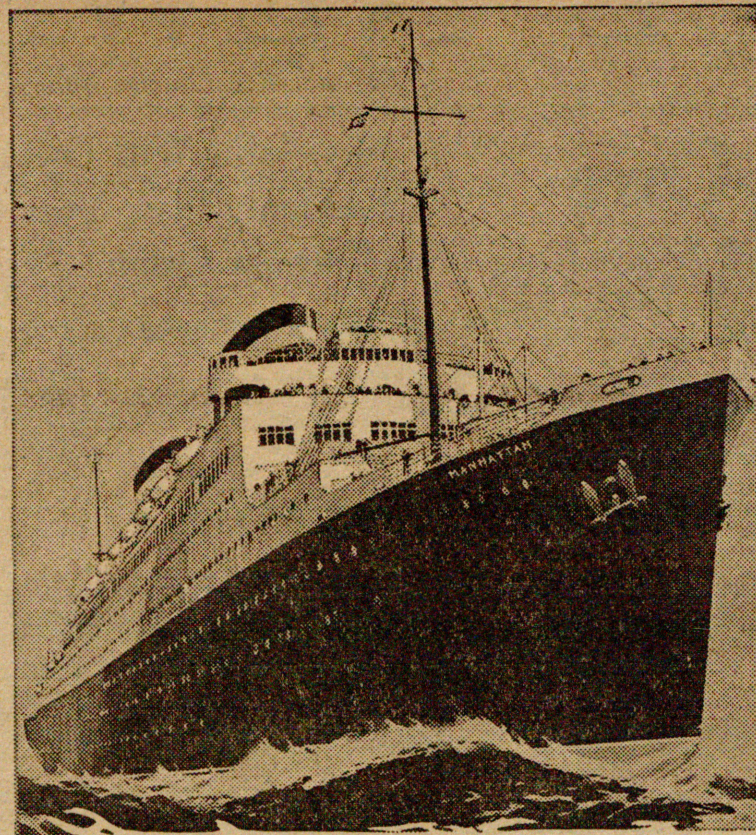

The new process is three or four times as cheap as the old and makes detours unnecessary.

This photograph of a painting shows what the Manhattan, largest merchant vessel ever built in the United States, will look like when it is completed. It was launched the other day at Camden, N. J., and will enter the transatlantic service of the United States lines next June. The Manhattan is of 30,000 gross registered tons, will carry about 1,000 passengers and will have a cruising speed of more than twenty knots. Capt. George Fried, hero of several ocean rescues, will be her commander.

Army Air Pilots Make Trip at 20,000 Feet

First Flight of Its Kind in Upper Atmosphere.

Chicago.—Twelve pursuit planes of the Ninety-fourth squadron recently completed a cross country flight from Selfridge field, Michigan, to Washington, D. C., at an altitude of 20,000 feet. All the pilots used liquid oxygen.

This flight was of exceptional importance, not only from a military point of view, but also because of its significance to commercial operators. It was the first massed and sustained flight of aircraft through the upper regions of the atmosphere, or the lower regions of the stratosphere, where there is little oxygen.

The army air corps has been conducting experiments in high altitude formation flying over a considerable period. Planes flying at 20,000 feet are invisible from the earth, and are usually high above the cloud bank. Only the most sensitive instruments can detect their passing.

The flight demonstrated one military fact, that if Washington should be endangered by an attack, a squadron could take off from Selfridge field, arrive at Washington, drop the auxiliary gasoline tanks, and have sufficient gasoline left to go right into combat at the ceiling of air combat just two hours after leaving Selfridge field.

The commercial significance of the flight lies in the fact that leaders of the aviation industry expect to see most passenger air transport done at altitudes of 20,000 feet or higher in the near future in hermetically sealed cabin planes, heated and supplied with oxygen from tanks. At that altitude weather conditions are always good and higher speeds can be attained than near the earth with the same planes and motors.

ODD THINGS AND NEW—By Lane Bode

MEN WHO COUNT

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK, Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

We were coming home from Field's funeral, Morton and I, and we were talking over the dead man's virtues and his weaknesses. Field had been a very quiet man who had lived within himself a good deal. He hadn't been active in anything, he had made very few friends, and these few were not in any sense close friends. Morton and I were as close to him as anyone had been, and yet it was a surprise to each of us when we were chosen as two of the pallbearers. We had thought he had more intimate friends than ourselves.

We were both a little sad about Field, not especially because he had gone, but because his going would make so little difference to anyone. He had seldom been counted in; his opinions, if he had any, carried very little weight, his influence was seldom weighed when weighty matters were under consideration.

"The saddest thing about it all," Morton said to me as we were walking along, "is that no one is really going to miss Field. He never seemed to count."

It was the last sentence which struck me most forcibly. Will the forces of evil feel relief when I am gone? Will there be those whose machinations have been interfered with or thwarted who will be glad and feel a sense of relief when they read your obituary or mine in the evening newspaper? It would give me pleasure to think so.

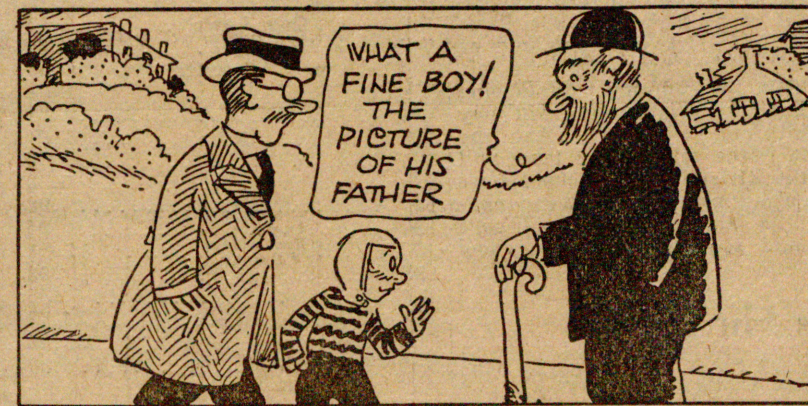

There are men in every community who really count, who when anyone is in trouble are first thought of, if any enterprise is to be undertaken are called on immediately, if weighty problems are to be considered are considered as valuable advisors.

Carrier was one of those. He was not a member of the board of directors of the First National bank, but that institution never backed any serious financial enterprise without some one's getting Carrier's opinion of it. He had little authority apparently, but he had what was more worth while, that is, influence. He wasn't so much of a church man, but he had a good deal to say if a new minister were under consideration in one of the local churches. He counted in social matters, in politics, in business, and in the affairs of the community in general.

I should like to be such a man.

Excellent Maxims for the Conduct of Life

My code of life and conduct is simply this, George Jean Nathan writes, in the Forum and Century: Work hard; play to the allowable limit, disregard equally the good or bad opinion of others; never do a friend a dirty trick; eat and drink what you feel like when you feel like; never grow indignant over anything; trust to tobacco for calm and serenity; bathe twice a day; modify the esthetic philosophy of Croce but slightly with that of Santayana and achieve for oneself a pragmatic sufficiency in the beauty of the esthetic surface of life.

Learn to play at least one musical instrument and then play it only in private; never allow oneself even a passing thought of death; never contradict anyone or seek to prove anything to anyone unless one gets paid for it in cold, hard coin; live the moment to the utmost of its possibilities; treat one's enemies with polite inconsideration; avoid persons who are chronically in need, and be satisfied with life always, but never with oneself.

An infinite belief in the possibilities of oneself, with a coincidental critical assessment and derogation of one's achievements; self-respect combined with a measure of self-surgery; aristocracy of mind combined with democracy of heart; forthrightness with modesty or at least with good manners; dignity with a quiet laugh; honor and honesty and decency—these are the greatest qualities that man can hope to attain. And as one man, my hope is to attain them.

Living Characters Used on Ancient Chessboard

The Moghul emperors of India carried out some strange plans in connection with their domestic life, and a visitor to the famous fort in Agra will be able to see some of the beautiful buildings used as part of the zenana. One of the most interesting features is the open space in the center of the fort, known as the Anjuri Bagh. This space is divided into many squares, marked off by marble slabs, and covered with green grass. There are broad marble causeways between the separate blocks. It is generally believed that the Moghul emperors used these as chess-boards, and the "pieces" used in the game were young slaves, who changed their position according to the directions of the players, who would be seated in one of the marble pavilions. The game played in those days did not correspond with the modern chess, but was known as pachedi. The size of the Anjuri Bagh is about 280 feet square.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

The Illinois League of Women Voters has just published the eighth edition of the Illinois Voters' handbook. It is the purpose of the book to present brief reference material on the structure of government, local, state, and national, with a digest of election laws and an explanation of the organization, local, state, and national, with a digest of election laws and an explanation of the organization of a political party. A summary of state laws concerning delinquency of taxes and sale of property for taxes, and the right of owners to redeem such property, is also included.

During the week of December 6 to 12, 367 new cases of scarlet fever were reported to the state department of public health. This is the most prevalent epidemic disease in the state. Whooping cough ranks second with 323 new cases reported during the same week. There have been sharp declines in the prevalence of typhoid fever and infantile paralysis.

By the use of thorough methods of combating plant diseases, Illinois farmers can materially lessen their losses from bacterial and fungus attacks on grains and trees. According to G. H. Boewe, field botanist of the natural history survey, federal quarantine and inspection of newly infected areas has been greatly beneficial, but by far the greatest responsibility lies with the individual farmer. His work should include selection of disease resistant plants, seed disinfection, removal of diseased plants or trees, use of insecticide, and fungicide sprays, and proper soil management.

The new president of the Illinois Horticultural society is Alvin O. Eckert, prominent Turkey Hill orchardist. He was elected at the close of the seventy-sixth annual convention which was held in Champaign. Other officers elected were: Arthur Foreman, Pittsfield, first vice president; George Schoff, Peoria, second vice president; H. W. Day, secretary; W. S. Perrine, Centralia, treasurer.

Representative Frank R. Reid, of Aurora, has been elected president of the National Rivers and Harbors congress. That organization has adopted strong resolutions urging congress to appropriate funds required to complete waterway improvement projects now under construction with a bond issue for that purpose by the federal government. Reid's election is considered recognition of his work as a member of congress in the enactment of Mississippi flood relief legislation.

More than 3,000 complaints from residents in northern Illinois municipalities have been received by the Illinois commerce commission relative to the substitution of natural gas for artificial gas. The complaints not only concern the cost of natural gas but, also, alleged improper adjustment of gas fixtures in making the change over.

Otto H. Hassel, Chicago, has been named as chairman of the board of fish and game conservation advisers in the department of conservation. The appointment was made by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson and the following members of the board were also appointed: W. R. James, Chicago; Josiah Terhorne, president of the Isaac Walton League of Illinois; Ben C. Overman, Mattoon; William M. Duncan, Alton.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has named the Illinois delegates to the twenty-ninth annual convention and road show of the American Road Builders' association which will be held at Detroit, January 11 to 14. The delegates are: Director H. H. Cleveland, state department of public works and buildings; Frank T. Sheets, chief highway engineer; Truman Platt, Sangamon county highway superintendent; Joseph M. Page, Jerseyville; E. E. Crabtree, Jacksonville; former state representative; Reed Cutler, Lewistown; Senator Henry M. Dunlap, Savoy; Representatives David Hunter, Rockford, and Henry Allen, Lyndon; James P. Wilson, Olney; Will J. Bell, and Frank Harrison, Chicago.

J. E. Hill, state supervisor of agricultural teaching, gives information on the progress made in the last 14 years. During that time, the number of high schools conducting agricultural programs has increased from less than 20 to more than 200. Students of agriculture, known as the Illinois Association of Future Farmers of America, study theories of farming during the nine months of the school term and also carry on the work during the three summer months.

Jane Addams, pioneer social worker and founder of Hull house at Chicago, who underwent a major operation in John Hopkins hospital in Baltimore is showing great improvement and her full recovery is expected.

An improved form of individual case records is being installed in state hospitals. This will be a complete, authentic record of every mental patient. The record will provide a thorough life history of each patient, with frequent notes of progress in their physical and mental condition.

Senator Otis Glenn has announced that an examination for entrance to the West Point Military academy will be held January 16. A principal and two alternates will be selected. Candidates must be residents of Illinois and between seventeen and twenty-two years of age. Those desiring to participate must communicate with Senator Glenn prior to the test.

The present session of the general assembly plans to enact laws which will compel Illinois counties to pay into the state treasury the money which is due. The measures will have the support of state officials who see a rapidly shrinking treasury. If taxes are collected, the state will proceed with its building program which means much employment and the outlay of several million dollars.

Strictest economy must be practiced during the coming year, Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has informed all elective state officials and directors of code departments. Governor Emmerson pointed out that the state revenues would be reduced due to the $170,000,000 decrease in valuation of property in the 1931 assessment.

Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom has ruled that stop signs along state routes 47 to 185 must be observed by motorists under penalty for violations the same as stop signs along routes 1 to 46. The motor vehicle law gives the department of public works and building authority to prescribe traffic regulations on routes 47 to 185.

The state seed germination plant, erected in accordance with the Illinois seed law of 1931, has been completed and is now in operation. It is located in the plant and industry division of the department of agriculture in the Centennial annex building. The department, previously, tested only the purity of seeds.

A word of warning to hunters has been issued by Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom. The law prohibits setting fire to or burning any peat, grass, brush or other inflammable substance for the purpose of hunting, or to hunt around or near any fire which has been set for the purpose of hunting.

The program of the conference of Illinois health officers and public health nurses which was held in the Centennial building, December 17-18, included addresses by H. E. Barnard, director, White House conference, Washington, D. C.; Dr. Frederick W. Schultz, University of Chicago; Dr. W. A. Evans, health editor, Chicago Tribune. The health problems of the public schools were discussed by Francis G. Blair, state superintendent of public instruction. Dr. Andy Hall, director of the department of public health, was chairman of the conference.

The annual home week of the University of Illinois will be held January 11 to 15. The program includes an address by Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde who will speak on "Looking Ahead in Agriculture."

Figures released by the mineral resources department of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce show that Illinois oil wells again increased in monthly production, with an output of 441,000 barrels for October, 1931. In September, 436,000 barrels were produced.

Business Improvement in Illinois. During the month of November 53 building permits, totaling $44,752, were issued in Springfield.

Twenty-five men have been employed by the Austin Manufacturing company, of Waco, Texas, manufacturers of wicker furniture, who have started an assembly plant in St. Charles.

East St. Louis has issued building permits for $12,000 worth of work. These were issued in one week and represent a new high for the fall construction season.

Thirty-six suburbs of Chicago during the first ten months of the year, have issued permits for the construction of homes and apartments with an aggregate cost of $6,052,106.

The Newton Box and Basket factory has started operation. Six men and seven women are employed and the management hopes, within a short time, to increase the force to twenty-one women and six or more men.

The Christmas postal rush in Chicago will necessitate the employment of about 2,500 extra men. The men will be chosen from among those who have already filed applications.

In Peoria, the community chest goal, which was set at $220,000, was over-subscribed about $8,000.

The Jefferson Bank and Trust company has reopened in Peoria. There have been no bank failures in Peoria.

A drive for funds for the relief of the unemployed went over the top at Champaign-Urbana by several hundred dollars.

A $600,000 county road building program is under way in Madison county. Work will be started in the spring and will give employment to 200 men.

The village of Forest Park is spending $125,000 for a 24-inch water main to connect the local water system with that of Chicago, to secure an adequate supply of water from Lake Michigan.

African Province Found to Be Flealess Oasis

A plague prevention survey of Africa resulted in the discovery of a spot which is absolutely free of fleas and the incident was regarded as so remarkable that the investigators tarried for some explanation of the unusual situation. This favored spot was the town of Prieska and the country immediately surrounding it. Fleas are notoriously good carriers of the germs of this disease and therefore the entire wide reaches of Africa were systematically searched for animals carrying infected specimens of "pulex irritans." Hence it happens that certain dogs at Prieska, which lies on the Karroo prairies of the Cape of Good Hope province, were searched for fleas by the medical men.

Not a solitary jumper could be found. Every cur, even the most neglected and mongrel native-owned brutes, was absolutely devoid of them.

The theory of some residents is that the nitrates in the barren lands surrounding this particular settlement act as a natural disinfectant.

World's Slowest Animals

A rare three-clawed sloth was picked up by C. S. Webb, the explorer. It was swimming in a British Gulana river, two miles from land. Day Dream is estimated to be about five years old. "It took her," said Mr. Webb, "exactly 3 minutes 47 seconds to climb from my boots to my shoulders, and I am not a giant." She was said to be at the top of her form. According to Mr. Webb, she and her mates live in perpetual twilight, more than 100 feet above ground. Sloth eyesight is so feeble that Day Dream wears a startling target pattern between her shoulders, or prospective suitors would never be able to "find the lady."

SONG OF THE WEEK

Who's Your Little Who-zis?

Who's your lit-tle who-zis? — Who's your tur-tle dove? —

Reviewed by Bing Crosby

BEN BERNIE ("The Old Maestro") has laid down his baton long enough to write one of the cleverest little songs I have heard in a long time. I have always been a Ben Bernie fan, as who isn't, and am usually around the loudspeaker when he's on the air. One evening, I heard him announce, in that bland manner of his, that he had a new song and that propositions from Eastern publishers to publish it wouldn't be unwelcome. Then he played and sang (in what he described as his "slightly-cracked baritone")—"Who's Your Little Who-zis." It immediately caught my fancy, because it was tuneful, and brought a novel, slightly humorous twist to the usual love theme.

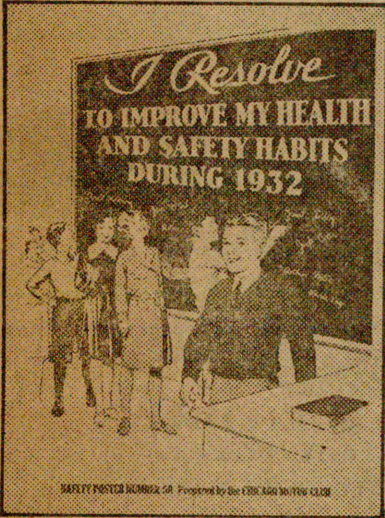

The publishers must have been listening too, for the song has since been climbing the ladder of popularity in no uncertain manner.

"I Resolve to Improve My Health and Safety Habits During 1932" is the thought written on a blackboard portrayed in the poster, and which is being signed by a number of boys and girls. Thousands of teachers use these posters as subjects for compositions, as well as general class discussions.

C. & E. I. Takes Off Five Trains

The Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad has been granted authority by the Illinois Commerce Commission to discontinue operation of its passenger trains Nos. 32, 35, 36, 37 and 38 between Chicago and Mokena.

These trains have been operating at a loss for sometime, the commission found. Numerous improved highways parallel the route of the railroad while the other railroads and numerous bus lines operate trains and buses daily between these cities. The elimination of the 5 C. & E. I. trains will cause very little inconvenience to the public, the commission found, and will materially reduce the operating expense of the railroad without materially decreasing its revenue.

The railroad will revise the schedule of its trains Nos. 5 and 6 operating between Chicago and Danville so that they will operate on approximately the same schedules now maintained by trains 5 and 6 will stop either regularly or on flag at all stations now served by trains 37 and 32.

"Parsols" Coming To Joliet, Jan. 10

Positively the biggest and most spectacular stage show ever offered in this part of the state will be presented at the Rialto theatre, Joliet on Sunday, January 10th. The production is entitled "Parsols" and was conceived and staged by Fanchon & Marco, celebrated Hollywood creators of theatrical extravaganzas. "Parsols" comes to the Rialto direct from Publix-Balaban & Katz loop theatres in Chicago and is en tour to New York where it will be seen at the Public Paramount theatre or Broadway.

Among the sensational features of this big production is a death defying bicycle loop-the-loop. Another feature is the ballet of twelve gorgeous girls, and one of their outstanding numbers is a distinct novelty called "The Unicycle Ballet". It is the most unique and at the same time sensational dance routine ever offered the public on any stage.

A host of other big features combine to make "Parsols" a lavish and highly entertaining production. Singers, musicians, comedians, every type of artist is represented, while the production itself is brilliantly staged and costumed.

The screen attraction with this big stage show will be Irving Fichel and Tallulah Bankhead in "The Chest", a Paramount production. Fichel is remembered for his fine work in "American Tragedy" in which he played the prosecuting attorney, likewise for his work in "Murder by the Clock". Miss Bankhead, a Broadway and European stage star, newly recruited to the films, has already established a big following, due to her unusual charm, exotic beauty and great acting ability.

Must Have 1932 Auto License Plates By February 1st

Illinois motorists with 1931 license plates attached to their cars may drive into Wisconsin and Indiana until February 1 without fear of arrest by state authorities, according to assurances received by the Chicago Motor Club.

On and after February 1, however, 1932 plates must be displayed on the car or the owner is liable to arrest and prosecution.

The motor club made this announcement after it interviewed Secretary of State William J. Stratton of Illinois, Secretary of State Theodore Dammann of Wisconsin and Grover C. Garrott, chief of Indiana State police under the direction of Secretary of State Frank Mayr, Jr., of Indiana.

"I have requested all states to recognize 1931 Illinois automobile license plates as legal until February 1," Secretary Stratton declared. "Also, state authorities in Illinois will honor 1931 license plates until that date."

Secretary Dammann replied that his office had agreed with Secretary Stratton to honor 1931 Illinois license plates until February 1. Chief Garrott answered that his office also concurred in Secretary Stratton's request. Both Secretary Dammann and Chief Garrott made it clear, however, that the 1932 plates must be attached on and after February 1; evidence, such as a money order receipt, purporting to show that application had been made, would not be considered as mitigating evidence.

"These assurances, it should be remembered, emanate from state authorities, and it is possible that some local law enforcing officers may arrest Illinois motorists with 1931 plates this month," the motor club pointed out. "In such event, the defendant should plead that he was acting in conformity with the policy of the state. Speaking generally, state laws, and policies in matters such as this, should supercede, from a legal standpoint, local laws and policies."

Let's you and I figure on that work you wanted done while prices are low. Honest work at honest prices. Work done only by experienced men.

Joint Emergency Relief Report

The following is a statement of results for period ending December 17, 1931 of the Joint Emergency Relief Fund of Cook County:

Total campaign pledges to date $10,401,603.03. Most of these pledges are payable in installments over a period of six to ten months.

Cash contributions to date are $4,078,715.02. Every dollar of the money contributed to this fund is paid out to approved charitable agencies on proper auditor's certificate of service rendered and relief given by them.

Total distributions to date $4,212,344.78. In order to meet pressing needs of agencies it has been necessary to borrow money.

Distributions have been for the following purposes:

Family Relief $3,960,993.96
For families in their own homes. This relief includes food, fuel, clothing and miscellaneous items, including special work for which cash was paid; and was distributed thru the five major agencies—The American Red Cross (Chicago Chapter) The Catholic Charities, The Jewish Charities, The Salvation Army, The United Charities and 12 Joint Emergency Stations, and thru 23 minor relief agencies in Chicago and suburbs. On November 30 these agencies had 85,525 families under their care.
Shelter $173,944.84

Shelter, food and clothing for homeless men and women. This aid was provided thru 30 shelters and individual relief stations. There were 14,389 men and 564 women registered on November 30.

Health and medical service $22,700.98. This includes some home service and free medical treatment in special cases at 11 free dispensaries and 10 hospitals. Free treatments to November 30 numbered approximately 25,000.

Care of children temporarily homeless, $25,169.66. This emergency care was provided thru 9 home finding agencies. The number of children under care on Nov. 30 was 622. Settlements and Neighborhood work, $11,195.26. This furnished emergency relief and special service thru 36 special settlements and neighborhood houses. These minister to large groups of people.

Protective and miscellaneous services, $18,290.08. These services for the protection especially of women and girls are furnished thru 11 agencies. On Nov. 30, 1931 individuals were under care.

The ten million dollars raised in the campaign thru the splendid generosity of the people of Cook County will not be sufficient to meet the entire relief needs of the winter. Efforts are being made to secure an additional equal sum from the State Legislature. Even if this is obtained, it will be necessary to limit rigidly the amount of relief which can be given to any individual or to any family. Contributors can help very materially by making prompt payment of all subscriptions as they fall due. Additional contributions will gladly be received at any time.

You cannot take the COW to the DOCTOR

No, you must get the doctor to the barn lot! And, of course, you call the doctor by telephone.

Quick help for sick livestock is one of many services the farmer gets from his telephone. Those whose memories go beyond the day of the telephone recall how often the veterinarian arrived too late and serious losses resulted.

One fine animal saved pays the telephone bill for many years. Truly, telephone service is one of the farmer's most important economies.

The St. Peter's Evangelical church meeting was held last Saturday evening in the church parlors. The following new deacons were elected: Louis Ebert, Glenn Folkers, Herman Schoop and Henry Geuther, jr.

Mr. and Mrs. William Baumgartner and family of Homewood spent Monday evening with Frankfort relatives.

PALOS PARK

Palos Park got on the map last week as the hide out for a gang of kidnapers when Gus Sanger, a resident of Palos Park for over 13 years was captured.

His bungalow had been used, it is said, as a place where kidnapped persons were held while the gang extorted ransom.

The downfall of Sanger and the arrest of the ransom gang was brot about when Dr. Max Gecht and his wife, both of Chicago, were kidnapped December 10th and Sanger became enamored of Mrs. Gecht while she was being held as a hostage in his cottage in Palos Park while the doctor was being made to pay a two thousand dollar ransom. Mrs. Gecht was released shortly afterward. Sanger sought to make a date with Mrs. Gecht after she was released and the Chicago police were notified and Mrs. Gecht agreed to the date. The capture of Sanger resulted as he attempted to call on his former host- age.

Another member of the gang is said to have been at the Oak Hills Golf Club last summer, but no one suspected his true character at that time.

Leonard Kay who has been employed as foreman in the Western Ave., yards of the Wabash railroad has been given an inspector's job since his foreman job has been abolished by the railroad company.

Quite a number of Orland men who are employed in the Western Ave., yards of the Wabash have been cut down to four days a week work. Section men have been put back on job after a lay off. Three section men at Orland have been returned to work on a four day a week schedule.

John G. Loebe has been in Kalamazoo, Michigan for several days.

The Prairie Hiking Club of Chicago made a hike thru this section on New Year's Day and wound up the trip with a big chicken dinner at the Purple Candle Restaurant.

Sherman S. Knox has accepted a position with the Fair store in Chicago.

The Wabash railroad has had a Signal gang here the past week. The men have been installing flashers at the 159th street crossing of the Wabash south of Orland Park. They have completed the job.

The Orland Park Post of the American Legion will install their new officers at the Legion Hall on evening of January 12th. All Legionnaires and their friends are invited to attend.

The Orland Park school re-opened Monday after being closed for the holiday season.

A bunco party will be held at the Purple Candle Restaurant on Friday evening of this week at 8 p. m.

Charles Heiple who has served as third trick operator at the local Wabash depot for several years, has been placed on the extra board and an operator from East St. Louis has been assigned to Orland Park.

The Orland Park Camp of the R. N. A., held their annual installation of officers at the Legion Hall Thursday evening.

The Orland Park P. T. A., will hold their monthly meeting and program at the school next Thursday evening.

Report has it that the state highway department is going to cut down the hill on the south side of 159th street near the Wabash crossing this spring. This hill obstructs the view of approaching trains from the south to autoist driving east on 159th st.

The postponed High school bunco party was held at the school Wednesday night, Jan. 6.

Mrs. Wm. Semmler of Mokena had a narrow escape from a serious accident Monday afternoon when the auto she was driving ran over a pig on Wolf Road near 159th street. There were six porkers roaming along the highway and when the auto was almost opposite them they started to cross the highway directly in front of the on coming car. Altho Mrs. Semmler tried to avoid hitting the porkers, two of them were caught and the car wheels passed over one of them. The resultant bump swerved the car off the pavement onto the earth shoulders and Mr. Porker was killed. Farmers should keep live stock off the paved roads as serious perhaps fatal accidents may result from collisions with live stock on the highway.

A new Frigidaire has been installed in the restaurant of Mike Remiek at 111th and Keane Avenue.

The Orland Park P. T. A. will hold its regular meeting Jan. 14 at 8 p. m. at the Orland Park school auditorium. The Illinois Bell Telephone Co., will show a sound picture. Everyone welcome.

John Lindgren of Orland Park who dropped his suit against the village last week has given out the following statement as his side of the controversy:

"Mr. Lindgren had agreed to do a job lasting about 16 hours for $12. When he came to do the job it was cancelled and he was given another job lasting 63 hours.

"Last Tuesday morning he was informed that the village was going to postpone the hearing indefinitely and at last transfer the hearing to another judge.

"Lindgren was informed that he was in need of the village charity for very many months and if he did not treat the village right he would receive no charity.

"Lindgren has read the history of the Boer war, has read that Kreuger was told that he would lose in the end. Rather than follow Kreuger, Lindgren told Judge Waje to drop the law suit and received 19 1/2c per hour for digging sewer 7 feet deep.

"Other unemployed worker has received from the village 50 cents per hour for cutting grass, burning weeds and painting fire plugs.

"If it is any consolation for said village board, will state that it is left for John Lindgren to pay for instituting and withdrawing said lawsuit."

STUDIO VISITS WITH TWINKLING STARS IN RADIO FIRMAMENT

Modern small-town life is being portrayed in Friendship Town, a new program series inaugurated over an NBC-WJZ coast-to-coast network. An all-star cast, including Edwin Whitney, Don Carney, Pick Malone and Pat Paget, blackface comedians; Virginia Gardner; Edith Spencer and Harry Salter's orchestra depict the various characters making up the country village of today. There are scenes in the drug store; the academy of music; upstairs; the garage; opera house and other local points of interest in Friendship Town. Local politics play a large part in the general theme, with love interest supplied by a pair of young sweethearts. Vocal selections are provided weekly by Frank Luther, tenor star.

Ray Perkins, radio funster, says there are a lot of men today who, when they think of business, get a slump in the throat.

Marcella Shields, who plays varied roles, is proud of a naive tribute to her ability as a delineator of children. Following a recent broadcast in which the former vaudeville actress played a little girl, she received dozens of letters from children who thought she really was a child.

A soldier who has been in the United States Veterans' hospital since the World War recently wrote to Elaine Page, fashion expert on the Woman's Radio Review, for instructions for crocheting a scarf described in one of her broadcasts. The veteran explained he could stick to knitting like many of his comrades, but he preferred to do something different.

Many celebrities are nervous before a microphone, but not Frank Buck, the man who brings 'em back alive from the jungles. Buck, who was recently interviewed by Grantland Rice over a national network, admits he was jumpy during rehearsal, but perfectly at ease when he faced the "mike."

The other night on the Cantor program:

Wallington: Hey Eddie! In China they grow pumpkins so big they cut 'em in two and each half makes a cradle for a baby.

Admiral Cantor: Huh! That's nothing! Back home they grow vegetables so large that three cops sleep on one beet.

Frank Crumit and Julia Sanderson, dropped in on Rudy Vallee at the Pennsylvania Grill recently. Vallee suddenly broke into his routine, and called on Crumit to sing his "Gay Caballero." Frank got up, cleared his throat, hesitated, and had to admit that at the moment he could not remember the words of one of the most famous of the songs written by none other than Mr. Frank Crumit. Some quick prompting by Miss Sanderson saved the day.

In the twelve years that the partners searched for each other, Paul never connected his fiddle with the Harry Kogen who leads the National Farm and Home Hour orchestra and several other radio units. The pair met by accident recently when Jonas, who is a Joliet (Ill.) orchestra leader, visited Chicago.

THE STORY

Six bandits hold up the steamer, Midnight Sun, on the Mackenzie, kill Jimmy Montgomery, and escape with gold dust and furs. At the Mounted Police post at Fort Endurance, Sgt. Alan Baker disputes with his incompetent superior, Inspector Haskell, regarding plans for the capture of the bandits. Baker starts out in the police launch with five men. At the MacMillan trading post, Joyce MacMillan is thrilled at the arrival of the police launch. She had expected to marry Baker, and had been stunned at the news that he was to marry Elizabeth Spaulding. Stolen furs are found on the MacMillan place and evidence points to Joyce's father. Joyce defends him. Alan leads his expedition up the big Aloska and catches sight of the bandits. Compelled by Haskell's foolish orders to divide the party, Alan fails to capture the bandits and returns to Fort Endurance. Haskell blames him for the failure and Alan is allowed to buy out of the Mounted on condition that he absolve Haskell from blame.

Thinking in hard practical terms, Alan saw that so long as Haskell had power over him, he could not stir a hand. If he was ever to get those criminals, he had to be free. Several paths lay open to him. One by one he studied and rejected them, till only the last remained.

For minutes he weighed that possible act. Its cost to him was a terrible cost. It would wipe out his brilliant reputation, his whole police record. It would kill his last chance of ever bringing Haskell to account. It would uproot him and take him for good and all out of this North country.

Torn by doubt and indecision, he wavered. The price seemed too staggering.

Presently he heard some one come up the terrace and glide past him and go on toward his cabin. The figure was merely a moving blur in the mist, but Alan recognized that light footsteps.

He called softly: "Joyce! You wanted to see me?"

"Alan! I've been wondering where you . . . Your cabin was all dark, and I couldn't find you." In eager hope she asked him: "Alan, what did Haskell say about Dad? He's going to release Dad on bail, as you thought?"

Alan shook his head, sorry for her, sorry for all the heartache that lay ahead for her now. "Joyce, Haskell can be brutal and inhuman. He wouldn't consent even to letting your dad remain here. He intends to send him outside to Edmonton."

It was on his lips to add, "Your father is being sacrificed to Haskell's need of a victim." But he could not bring himself to tell Joyce that. The news had stricken her cruelly enough.

If only she could be near her father, if only she could visit him, the ordeal might be lightened for her. The lonely waiting weeks of suspense would be agony, if her father was a thousand miles away, among strangers, with no one to lift a hand for him.

He offered gently: "Joyce, if you want to go along and be near him, I'll pay—I'll see to it that you can. It'd be best for you, and for him too, if you would."

Joyce did not answer at once. As he looked down at her, Alan was struck by the sense of how young and innocent a girl Joyce was; and with bitter self-reproach he remembered those long months of the winter past when he had left her alone to her battle, because Elizabeth, protected, sheltered, kept in ease here at Endurance, had demanded it of him. He realized that in her desperate plight she needed his strength and protection far more than Elizabeth did. Except for him Joyce was alone in the world, without friends, relatives, money, and with her father in the shadow of the gallows.

Presently, with the spirited courage he had always loved in her, Joyce asserted:

"Alan, I'm going back home. The Dogribs are bringing in their furs next week. I'll send several of their men en derouline to the Hares and Loucheux and get their furs, too. I'll sacrifice all our trade goods and raise money for Dad's defense. It'll be a true way of fighting for Dad if I go back home. I don't mind being alone. I can take care of myself. It'll be lonely, but all the time I'll be knowing that I'm doing the right thing and being a real help to Dad."

Alan acquiesced reluctantly, against his better judgment. A slender girl like her, scarcely out of her teens, going back to that isolated post. . . . A white girl, winsome, pretty, of his some body, alone there, with Indians coming and going, with half-breeds coming and going. . . .

Joyce asked him: "What happened between you and Haskell, Alan?"

Briefly Alan told her what had taken place down there in the cabin.

His account left Joyce speechless, in a silent fury, her little fists clenched, her lips parted in astonishment.

"But he can't demote you, Alan!" she cried. "He can't blame you for his mistake."

"He can't? He's already done it! If I try to fight him, if I make the slightest insubordinate move, he's actually got the power to jail me!"

"But the Inconnu patrol—he'll let you go on that, Alan?"

"And capture those men and get the credit? Not Haskell! He's too wise. Getting those bandits comes second with him. So long as he saves his face, he doesn't really care whether he gets them or not. That Inconnu patrol is dead. It was our best hope, but now it can't ever be. I could stir up trouble for him, I could bring on an investigation; but that would take months. It'd be too late then; those bandits'll be gone."

She repeated, brokenly: "Gone, gone—yes, I'll be too late then. Alan, that means—means Dad will be found guilty—and sent to prison—or worse. . . ."

For the second time in the years he had known her, Joyce broke down and cried. It hurt Alan as few things in his life had ever done. As he felt her sobbing against him, as he thought of this tragedy looming over her, his last hesitancy about his plan was swept away. With those bandits safe in the watery wilderness of the Thalak-Azzah, Dave MacMillan would be convicted; he would be sent up for life. It would break Joyce, break her spirited courage, her wild-born nature. When he thought of the terrible stigma upon a girl so innocent and brave, he swore silently:

"I'll never see her brought down to that. I'll get those men, I'll bring the truth into court."

He realized fully that he was starting on a long trail, a trail never to be retraced. He was committing himself to a staggering self-sacrifice. But he had to traverse that path; in honor he could do nothing else.

He rose abruptly, brushing away his last trace of hesitancy; and gave Joyce his hand to rise.

"Joyce, there's something I've got to do now. I've got to go. You mustn't stay here. Come." He took her arm, and as they went down the slope, he asked: "I want to see you again before I—some final arrangements with you. . . . Won't you be down at the wharf in half an hour?"

Wondering at his odd tones, his stern purposive manner, Joyce promised him.

At Mrs. Drummond's house he left her and started out along the terrace to Haskell's cabin.

Across the desk he demanded, with no preliminaries:

"I want to buy out. Tonight! Here! Now!"

Haskell's eyes narrowed in suspicion. He could hardly believe it. He knew how deeply Baker was rooted in his work and friendships and life in this northern country; and he could scarcely conceive of a man deliberately throwing away a long brilliant police record at one irremediable step.

But there was no doubting Baker's words, no doubting his grim manner. Baker was demanding to buy out—to get out for good. As he studied the sergeant, Haskell drew back warily. Baker might be laying some trap for him.

He refused. "I'm too short-handed here as it is now."

"I don't give a d—n about that. I'm buying out."

Haskell's confidence was returning as he saw that Alan intended no physical violence. "If you buy out, your record ends. You'll have to start all over."

"I'm buying out for good. There'll be no starting over again. I'm getting out of the Mounted, out of the country!"

Haskell debated swiftly. He was not averse to Baker cutting his own head off; and he saw now there was no trap laid for him. But there were other things to be considered. His sober judgment, casting back over the last nine months, recalled the score of times Baker had corrected bad mistakes of his and kept the post running smoothly. Wisdom whispered to him that he needed the man, needed him desperately. And Elizabeth Spaulding . . . Was she going away with Baker? Was Baker taking her with him?

If she went, his act in busting the sergeant would prove a boomerang against himself. He tried to temperize.

"I haven't the authority to let you. You'll have to make out application and wait for permission from headquarters."

"That's the rule for close-in detachments. Down north here where a communication would take several months, it's understood that an officer can accept a buy out on his own recognition."

"But it's not the official rule. Under the circumstances I don't choose to accept your papers."

"You will choose! I'll make you choose! You've busted me, all right; you've saddled the blame and shame of that patrol on me; you've mouthed your lie and you've got a stool pigeon there to back you up. But I can bring on an investigation just the same. There's things happened last winter that you can't lie out of. Williamson is coming down here next month. He hasn't got any too much use for you now. If I'm here when he comes, what I'll tell him won't help your standing much."

Haskell lit a cigarette to hide his nervousness. He asked, "Where are you going if you get out of service?"

"That'll not be your affair, thank God! I'm leaving here. Tonight. That all you need to know."

Haskell started a little. Tonight—no boat coming past—it meant Baker was going by himself! Meant Elizabeth would not go with him but would stay here at Endurance!

Very thoughtful, he looked away, debating. Baker's motives, his reasons for this precipitate move, were dark and puzzling. But he saw no way in which they could possibly harm him. Hardscock, an experienced northern man, would still be available, a reliable veteran to turn to, especially if baited by the hope of this vacated sergeancy. Hardscock would be easier to manage, too. Since Elizabeth was going to stay here, at least temporarily, why shouldn't he let Baker go? The farther away he was, the better!

The more he studied the situation, the more it seemed too good to be true that Baker was deliberately cutting his head off, buying out, getting out of the country, leaving Elizabeth here alone, killing any possibility of the investigation that he secretly dreaded.

"I'll consent on one condition to your buying out. Otherwise you'll have to wait for official and regular approval."

"What's the condition?"

"There seems," Haskell said steadily, with the ability to look Alan squarely in the eyes, "to be a difference of opinion between us about the responsibility of this Aloska patrol. If you'll sign a statement to the effect that you had complete charge of the detail and split your party on your own initiative—if you'll do that, you can buy out. Otherwise you can't."

Alan wavered. Signing a brazen lie, taking all the stinging disgrace upon himself, strengthening Haskell's guilty hand . . . But then his thoughts leaped to Jimmy and Larry and Dave MacMillan, and to Joyce, pinning her last hope to him. What did it matter, his signing a lie? Would it change one jot or tittle of God's truth? What did a rag of paper matter on his long free-flung hunt for those murderers, avenging his partners, shielding Joyce?

He said: "I'll sign. Load it as heavy as you like. But don't knock Hardscock or Pedneault or Younger."

Haskell wrote out the declaration of responsibility. Alan read it. As he wrote his name, he sneered:

"If I were you, I'd frame that, inspector, and hang it on the wall. It's a certificate of your dishonor."

Not answering, Haskell went on looking up the remaining enlistment period and figuring the amount. Whipple brought over the forms and filled in the data. Both Alan and Haskell, with the constable as witness, signed the numerous official sheets of the procedure.

Folding his copy of it, Alan walked out of the door, out of service, out of the Mounted Police.

Mankind Still Clings to Pomp and Ceremony

It is, of course, mere blindness and blundering to suppose that monarchy is decaying in the modern world. The danger is much more that the future governments will be too despotic than that they will be too democratic.

But if there is one idea more absurd than the idea that we have seen the end of royalty, it is the idea that we have seen the end of ritualism. Pomp and ceremony were always popular with the real populace.

Nobody who has seen, as I have, the long procession of the Italian organization of citizen soldiers, passing the tomb of a new and nameless soldier and saluting it with a gesture three thousand years old, can doubt that every crowd in the world really cries out for some such sacramental sign.

Ceremony will not depart from mankind; on the contrary, as in the case of monarchy, it is much more likely that it will be very difficult to get an English king (even for two minutes) to enjoy wearing a crown.—G. K. Chesterton in the American Magazine.

The "Flapper"

Webster's New International dictionary says: A young girl of about fifteen to eighteen years of age, especially one who is not yet "out" officially; probably so called with a double allusion to "flapper," a young duck, and to the braid of hair worn hanging down the back of young girls.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for January 10

THE FIRST DISCIPLES

LESSON TEXT—John 1:19-51.
GOLDEN TEXT—The next day John seeth Jesus coming unto him, and saith, Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Makes Five New Friends.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Makes Five New Friends.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What It Means to Follow Jesus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Bringing Others to Christ.

I. John Pointing out the Lamb of God (vv. 19-34).

Through the testimony of John the Baptist, his disciples were directed to Jesus. His theme was "The Lamb of God, the Sin-bearer of the World."

II. Two of John's Disciples Followed Jesus (vv. 35-37).

As a result of the Baptist's testimony, two of his disciples left him and followed Jesus. One of these disciples was Andrew (v. 40) and presumably the other was John, the apostle. When John pointed out Jesus as the Lamb of God, the long-expected Messiah, these disciples sought further acquaintance with Jesus. Through John's testimony, they looked upon the Lord. When they looked, they believed. The proof of their belief was their following after him. John speaks, the disciples hear and follow. The whole plan of salvation is wrapped up in this simple testimony and action.

III. The Two Disciples Abiding with Jesus (vv. 38, 39).

1. Jesus' question (v. 38). Seeing the disciples following him, Jesus most kindly inquired as to their object.

2. The disciples' reply (v. 39). They answered his question by inquiring as to his dwelling place. Their reply showed their desire to go apart privately where they could disclose their hearts to him. Knowing their hearts, he invited them to his place of abode. Therefore, for the remainder of that day they held sweet intercourse with the Master.

IV. The Disciples Bringing Others to Jesus (vv. 40-46).

This portion of the lesson is one of the most inspiring passages of the Bible for the encouragement of soul winning.

The very genius of Christianity is self-propagation. The usual method is to begin with those nearest us—home folk and relatives—and then pass out to ever widening circles. The disciples, who were with Jesus in blessed fellowship, got at once to tell others of the priceless treasure they have found.

1. Andrew brings Peter (vv. 40-42). This is a beautiful example of brotherly affection, expressing itself in bringing another to Christ. The best place to begin our testimony to Christ is among our kinsfolk (Luke 8:39). This was a great piece of work for Andrew, for Peter became one of the pillars of the church of God. This was in keeping with what Christ announced, for when Jesus beheld him he said, "Thou art Simon, the son of John. Thou shalt be called Cephas"—meaning a stone.

2. Philip bringing Nathanael (vv. 43-46). Christ found Philip the following day as he would go forth into Galilee. Philip followed him in response to a personal invitation. Then Philip found Nathanael and witnessed to him concerning the Messiahship of Jesus. He said unto him, "We have found him, of whom Moses in the law and the prophets did write, Jesus of Nazareth" (v. 45). Christ is the sum and substance of the Old Testament. Nathanael was somewhat skeptical, but was honest. The proper thing is to invite the skeptical to put Christ to a test. Christianity welcomes inquiry.

V. Nathanael Seeing and Hearing Jesus Testifies to His Deity (vv. 47-49).

As soon as Nathanael heard and saw Jesus, all his doubts rolled away. Jesus proved that he was the omniscient One. We do not know what Nathanael was doing under the fig tree. Perhaps he was praying for heavenly light and guidance. Jesus saw him while there. He who is willing to be led shall surely come to the light (John 7:17). He who acts upon the light given shall see greater things (vv. 50, 51). Angels ascending and descending upon the Son of man with the open heavens show that Jesus Christ is the means of communication between earth and heaven (Heb. 10:19, 20; Eph. 2:18; Gen. 28:12). This narrative concerning the experiences of the first disciples exhibits the following stages of Christian experience:

1. Hearing about Jesus (v. 36).
2. Looking upon Jesus (v. 36).
3. Following Jesus (v. 37).
4. Abiding with Jesus (v. 39).
5. Witnessing for Jesus (vv. 41-45).
6. Bringing others to Jesus.

The Present Duty

Between the great things we cannot do, and the small things we will not do, there is great danger that we shall do nothing. There are not a few people waiting for an opportunity to be heroes, or something unusually brilliant, who in the meanwhile are not ordinary useful citizens.

Meet God

"Meet God in the secret place each day before you come in contact with the world."

Player Gives New Note to Usual Golf Alibi

There were two things in George Tweep's life that meant everything to him—his family and his golf. It is really difficult to understand how he managed to find time for both. At any rate, his wife and five children complained of no neglect and his golf score averaged around 78.

George had won the right to represent his club in the state golf tournament. During the period preceding the final matches, Mrs. Tweep presented him with a sixth child.

Another man would either have withdrawn from all sports, or would have deserted his family at such a time. George, however, was prepared for the situation. A putting green had been built on the front lawn of his home. Thus he could practice and be near the newest Tweep at the same time.

One afternoon an appreciative gallery came over to watch George do his putting. From all angles, he tapped the ball into the cup—his skill was little short of amazing. At length he decided to try one more and call it a day. It was a simple six-footer, the kind he had been making all afternoon.

He took his stance, held his breath, drew back his putter slowly and brought it forward smoothly. At the moment of impact, from within the house came the disturbing wall of the Tweep infant. George's wrist jerked—the sphere missed the cup by a good three inches!

Forcing a smile, George looked around at the gallery.

"Too bad!" he said. "I guess it's that new bawl!"—Kansas City Star.

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

Get an ounce and use as directed. Fine particles of aged skin peel off until all defects such as pimples, liver spots, tan and freckles disappear. Skin is then soft and velvety. Your face looks years younger. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty of your skin. To remove wrinkles use one ounce Powdered Saxillite dissolved in one-half pint with honey. At drug stores.

New Freezing Process

Utilizing intense cold at 50 degrees below zero, a process has been perfected by which perishable foods are frozen so that they retain their original fresh flavor and texture for months in a frozen state.

Meats, seafoods, poultry, vegetables and fruits are processed by the new method. According to Clarence Birdseye, quick-freezing inventor, the foods are frozen so quickly that no harmful chemical or organic change can take place in them.

Modern Girl Benefited

Nothing is more astonishing to us older physicians in London than the complete disappearance in one generation of a disease which I, as a medical student, saw extensively in hospital practice, namely, chlorosis of young girls. This was a serious form of anemia, which choked our outpatient departments with its frequency. Its disappearance was practically synchronous with the disappearance of the corset and the greater freedom of bodily movements, and the increased enjoyment of outdoor exercise by girls and young women, and it is a singular instance of how fashion may hinder or foster health. The very sensible exodus from London in the autumn and at week-ends is a comparatively modern invention and one contributing to better health and physique.—Sir Ernest Graham Little.

Now I'll Tell One

For the man who wears a 13 1-2 size shirt, the wife usually does the buying.

One of our neighbors washed his auto with the sponge cake his wife baked last week.

I injured my hand and asked doc when my hand was healed if I would be able to play the piano. Doc said said certainly. I thought that was queer as I never was able to play before.

The girl with good scenery always gets two looks.

I am very fond of indoor sports. If they know when to go home.

I put butter on one slice of bread and jam on the other side. That saves a slice of bread.

I asked our butcher for a dime's worth of boiled ham. He cut it so thin he nearly missed it.

Last week I met a man who expresses his opinion, freight is to slow.

Hannah—"Why are you shaking the baby?"

Emma—"I just gave him a teaspoonful of medicine and forgot to shake the bottle."

A child's welfare station is the half way station to perfect health to any child's future.

Girls, send me your name in full and I shall write a pun or joke using your name.
